Improving the Consular Service. The National Business league, a non partisan organization with headquarters at Chicago, has vigorously resumed its campaign for the improvement of the United States consular service. It urges fixed salaries for agents, instead of fees, and would have the offices under the merit system. The reclassification of these commercial representatives of the United States and their selection, according to fitness concerning the examination was of to pay political obligations, would greatly add to the value of the reports which are made by them. There has been a considerable improvement in the consular service in recent years, and by several foreign observers it has been declared to be the best organized and most efficient in the world, though there is still chance for improvement. This could doubtless be measurably accomplished by the reforms urged by the National Business league.

During the last few years a number of American colleges have established courses of study calculated to fit young men for this branch of the foreign service, and if followed up will ho doubt accomplish good results.

In this connection it may be noted that the bureau of foreign commerce of the department of state has been formally transferred to the new department of commerce and labor, and henceforth all consular reports which deal with matters of interest to business men and exporters will be issued the consular agents in various parts of the world have been of much value to export business, and possibly can be made of still greater value under the new arrangement. It unlawful to send this matter through the mail, as it relates to counterfeiting, and the postal authorities are endeavoring to ascertain the source from which it comes. To accomplish this all suspicious mail matter will be stamped in red ink with the two words, "Official Warning." If when opened the letters should prove to be of the class named they should be returned to the postmaster at once. Ho will forward them to the secret service officials, and in this way it is hoped to reach the men who are making an attempt to work their swindle in this section.

The men who handle the thousands of letters that pass through the postoffice every day learn to be expert in classifying mail. They soon learn to judge in some intuitive way whether or not a letter is honest in its mission, although the envelope may bear no mark other than the address and stamp. All such letters will be marked as described and the postal authorities urge the public to co-operate with All that is necessary is to give Chamber them in an effort to break up the lain's Colle, Cholera and Diarrhoea counterfeiters.
